On June 10, 2022, the Commission found that respondents La Modish, Star Bay, Huizhou, and Anao (“Defaulting Respondents”) were in default and waived their rights to appear, to be served with documents, and to contest the allegations in this investigation, pursuant to 19 CFR 210.16(b). Order No. 58 (May 20, 2022), unreviewed by Comm'n Notice (June 10, 2022).

On September 13-16, 2022, the presiding administrative law judge (“ALJ”) held an evidentiary hearing with Crocs, OUII, and the remaining respondents Orly, Hobby Lobby (collectively, “the Orly Respondents”), and Amoji (all collectively, “Respondents”).

On January 9, 2023, the ALJ issued the subject final ID, finding no violation of section 337 because: (1) Crocs did not prove that Respondents infringe the Asserted Marks; (2) Crocs did not prove that Respondents falsely designate the origin of their accused products or cause unfair competition; (3) Crocs did not prove that Respondents dilute the Asserted Marks by blurring or tarnishment; (4) the 3D Marks are invalid for lack of secondary meaning; and (5) Crocs waived its infringement contentions against Defaulting Respondents. ID at 71-72, 83-86, 148-49. The ID also finds that Crocs has satisfied both the technical and economic prongs of the domestic industry requirement. Id. at 130, 149. The ID further finds that Respondents failed to prove that the 3D Marks are invalid as functional or that the Word Mark is invalid as generic. Id. at 128-29, 149. The ID takes no position on Crocs’s alleged injury or Respondents’ fair use defense. Id. at 129-30.

On January 13, 2023, the Commission issued a notice soliciting submissions from the public on the public interest implications of any remedial orders the Commission may issue in this case. 88 FR 3437 (Jan. 19, 2023). On February 9, 2023, non-party Joybees, LLC, a U.S. seller of footwear, filed a statement opposing issuance of a general exclusion order, (“GEO”). EDIS Doc. ID 790010 (Feb. 9, 2023). The Commission also received a letter dated June 14, 2023, from U.S. Representative Brittany Pettersen (CO-7), who represents the congressional district in which Crocs is headquartered. EDIS Doc. ID 798554 (June 14, 2023).

On April 5, 2023, the Commission determined to review the ID’s findings that: (1) Crocs waived its infringement contentions against the lined version of Orly’s Gators; (2) the 3D Marks are not entitled to the presumption of validity and are invalid for lack of secondary meaning; (3) Crocs waived its infringement contentions against Defaulting Respondents; (4) subject matter jurisdiction; (5) likelihood of confusion; (6) false designation of origin; (7) dilution; and (8) the technical and economic prongs of domestic industry. Comm’n Notice at 3-4 (Apr. 5, 2023); 88

FR 21712-15 (Apr. 11, 2023). The Commission determined not to review the remaining findings in the ID.

On April 19, 2023, Crocs, the Orly Respondents, and OUII filed their responses to the Commission's notice of review. On April 26, 2023, the parties filed their respective replies. Amoji did not file its own response or join the briefing by the Orly Respondents.

Having reviewed the ID, the parties' submissions, and the evidence of record, the Commission has determined to affirm and adopt the ID's findings that Respondents have not infringed or diluted any of the Asserted Marks, falsely designated the origin of their Accused Products, or engaged in unfair competition. The Commission has determined to reverse the ID's finding that Crocs waived its infringement contentions with respect to the lined versions of the accused Orly Gators and find instead that Crocs failed to prove infringement by the lined Orly Gators.

The Commission takes no position on Orly's alleged first sale in April 2016, the presumption of validity, secondary meaning, injury, fair use, and the technical and economic prongs of the domestic industry requirement.

The Commission has further determined to issue an LEO to Defaulting Respondents and CDOs to defaulting respondents La Modish and Star Bay pursuant to section 337(g)(1). 19 U.S.C. 1337(g)(1).

The Commission's reasoning in support of its determinations is set forth more fully in its opinion issued herewith. Commissioner Kearns dissents from the Commission's finding of no violation of section 337 for the reasons detailed in his dissenting views issued herewith.

The investigation is hereby terminated.

The Commission vote for this determination took place on September 14, 2023.

The authority for the Commission's determination is contained in section 337 of the Tariff Act of 1930, as amended (19 U.S.C. 1337), and in Part 210 of the Commission's Rules of Practice and Procedure (19 CFR Part 210).

By order of the Commission.

Secretary to the Commission
